Momma,

You are my world. You taught me how to be a responsible man. I'm going to miss cleaning up your house, coming over and having you cook, taking your food, and making sure you had everything you wanted. I love you and you know I'm going to miss you.

To my loving mother,

You will be missed. I thank God for giving you life to give me life. I will continue to be the independent, strong, and loving woman that you taught me to be. It hurts, my heart is empty, but I know that you are in a better place. Love you always!!

Momma,

I'm going to miss calling you early in the morning and hearing you fuss about us not letting you get any sleep. You were my biggest critic, even when I did things right you were always there to tell me how I could do better. Dang man, I love you momma. See you later.

You will always be my #1 fan.
